Crime and Public Safety

For the period Jan 1st-March 31st, 2026, Open Data DC lists 4,410 reported crime incidents for the District as a whole. Of these, only 38 (0.86%) were reported for our entire ANC (3D). Eleven incidents are reported for Census Tract 8.02, which closely corresponds to our Foxhall-MacArthur neighborhood. Disturbingly, these incidents include 4 motor vehicle thefts and 1 assault with a gun.

At the Feb 4th ANC 3D meeting, Officer McElwee reported that the vehicle stolen on Jan 20th (a 2026 Honda CRV with VA tags) was recovered with some slight damage and returned to the owner. He reported that the other vehicles stolen in Jan had DC tags but had not been recovered as of Feb 4th. At the March 4th ANC 3D meeting officer McElwee reported that a 2022 Volkswagen SUV was stolen on Feb 14th in the 4600 Block of Greene Place but did not state whether it had been recovered as of that date. Officer McElwee noted that traffic enforcement continues to focus on MacArthur Blvd. in the 4500- 4600 block area for the safe passage of students and speed enforcement. Neighbors who would like more information about crime incidents can ask Officer McElwee at the FCCA General Meeting on April 15th.

January Snowstorm Response Recap

The fact that the heavy snow in Late January turned into and remained ice made snow removal a nightmare. At the Feb 4th ANC3D meeting, Owen Cox, our liaison with the Mayor’s office, discussed problems the city was dealing with in clearing the “snowcrete.” I was surprised to hear that the city was clearing alleys where DPW must do trash/recycling collection. I am curious whether anyone is aware of alleys that were cleared by the city in our area.

There were numerous comments about how contractors operating Bobcat end-loader construction equipment dumped frozen snow blocks in a manner that blocked narrow streets or private driveways. Residents were supposed to call 311 to have contractors clear these blockages.

Construction at MacArthur High School

At the March Site Improvement Committee (SIT) meeting at MacArthur High School, attendees were given little information about plans to build an auditorium and expand the cafeteria; only that bidders are working on proposals. Principle McCray did note that currently there are 580 MHS students enrolled.

April 21st Candidate Forum

The FCCA will partner with the Palisades Community Association and Spring Valley Neighborhood Association to host a Candidates Forum at the Ames Auditorium on the Mt. Vernon campus of George Washington University on Tuesday April 21st from 7 to 9 PM. Doors will open at 6:30 PM. This will be an in-person event.

The forum will have two parts: The first half will focus on the DC Mayoral race for whom three candidates have been invited: (1) Gary Goodweather; (2) Janeese Lewis-George; and (3) Kenyan McDuffie. The second half will focus on the DC Attorney General race for whom (1) Brian Schwalb and (2) JP Szymkowicz have been invited.

The forum will follow an impartial format, with a focus on substantive policy positions rather than back-and-forth debate. The event will be moderated by an individual selected by the organizers who reflects this commitment.

We are seeking questions from the community and will be posting a link on the FCCA listserv and on our website (foxhall.org) where you can submit your questions. Alternatively, please email raverydc@gmail.com with your questions.

St. Patrick’s Proposes New Middle School

By Bob Avery

St. Patrick’s Episcopal Day School has announced plans to relocate their middle school program from its current location at 4590 MacArthur Blvd to a new building to be constructed on Whitehaven Avenue (see below). Plans for the new middle school, which were developed following a long-range facilities planning effort, were reviewed with members of the community at open meetings hosted by St. Patrick's on March 17 and 19, 2026.

Currently the middle school has 124 students and 15 faculty, and the lower school has 380 students and 105 faculty. As part of its proposal St. Patrick's is proposing to expand their combined student body by up to 50 students and 20 faculty. The net effect is expected to increase the student "drop-offs" and "pickups" on Whitehaven by approximately 40% and 30% respectively with most of the increase reflecting a shift from the current middle school. It will also require an increase in the number of parking spaces on the Whitehaven campus.

The proposal calls for a comprehensive construction management plan with (1) construction hours of 7AM to 7PM Monday to Saturday; (2) all construction parking and staging to be "on-site" and prohibited on neighborhood streets; and (3) a construction liaison and regular community meetings.

St. Patrick's current planned timeline is to present a virtually complete version of the proposal to ANC-3D by its May meeting prior to a vote at its June meeting. This would allow for BZA approval by the end of 2026. Construction would begin in early 2027 and be completed by September 2028 in time to begin the new school year. The school would maintain its current lease of the middle school property on MacArthur until then.

The history of this proposal goes back over 20 years. In 2001, philanthropist Betty Casey purchased a 16 ½ acre site bordered by Hoban and Foxhall Roads with the idea of building a mansion for the District's Mayor. Partly because of local opposition, her plan failed, and she donated the land to the Salvation Army. They put the property up for sale in 2005 with a preference for non-profit applicants. Backed by a group of parents, St. Patrick's purchased the property with a plan to divide it into three parcels. A 1.5-acre middle portion would be preserved as open space. The remaining space would be divided in two: the northern half along Foxhall would be reserved for new St. Patrick's middle and high schools totaling 440 students and a full-sized athletic field. The other half would be subdivided into lots where up to 28 single-family homes would be built. The proceeds from the sale of the lots were expected to cover the costs of purchasing the property but not the building of the new schools.

St. Patrick's proposal garnered significant community opposition. However, over the course of a 2-month period in early 2006 the community and St. Patrick's were able to come to an agreement. Central to the community's position were significant restrictions on the use of the athletic field (no outside usage, no lights or amplified sound and no summer camp). St. Patrick's agreed to these conditions with the understanding that they could be revisited in the future.

Subsequently, the lots were sold and developed (the current 1801 Foxhall Association), and the athletic field was built, but St. Patrick's could not get funding for the schools (until now, and only for the middle school and at a different location).

Currently, in addition to introducing concept plans for the new middle school, St. Patrick's is also interested in revisiting the use of the Foxhall Athletic Field. Further discussions with community stakeholders, particularly those neighbors most directly impacted by the use of the field, will be convened over the coming weeks as St. Patrick's completes work on its application for review and approval of the middle school proposal by the BZA.

More information about the project, including the materials presented at the March community meetings, can be found at the St. Patrick's middle school project website at <https://www.stpatsdc.org/campus-unification>. Questions and comments can also be directed to campusunification@stpatsdc.org.

Remembering William Bateson 1938-2026

By Katherine Samolyk

William Bateson, long-time community member, grew up working on the family farm in Oregon. In 1956, William joined the Army Reserve, and in 1963 he married Martha Mumford of Corvallis, Oregon. After earning degrees in agricultural economics and an internship in India, they moved to Madison, Wisconsin, where their son Thomas was born and where William earned a PhD in economics. His career in international development took them to Nepal, Sudan, Jamaica, and the former Soviet Republic of Georgia. Between foreign jobs, William taught economics at the University of Wisconsin.

In 2005, William and Martha moved to Washington, DC, settling in Foxhall Village. Many have fond memories of William—including those of us who were involved in the Save Hardy Park effort. Neighbors Robert and Barbara Verdile recount benefiting from William's freely given handy-man skills, and the rich soil they acquired in exchange for contributing to his compost bin. According to Joanne Couger, dog walkers will remember his Lhasa Apso dogs. Encountering William on walks in the Village, Arturo Valenzuela and his wife Katy always enjoyed William's many stories (it turned out that William knew Katy's parents when they were stationed in Sudan with USAID). And of course, William was lauded for his efforts organizing the annual Dogwood Alley Potluck—for which he became known as the mayor of the Alley. William (along with his wife Martha) was also a longtime member and volunteer at Palisades Village. Perhaps most importantly—every recollection of William includes mention of his kindness, wit, and humor.

William is survived by spouse Martha, son Thomas, daughter-in-law Zi-fan Yu, and grandchildren Kailin and Kyan. His ashes will be scattered from the south jetty of the Columbia River in Clatsop County, Oregon.

Local History: When Congress ruled our Federal District

By Katherine Samolyk

When the Federal District called Columbia was created by Congress, Article One, Section 8, of the Constitution was included which allowed the US Congress "To exercise exclusive Legislation in all Cases whatsoever, over such District." After the Civil War, the Federal Government took over control of the governance of the entire Federal District, passing the Columbia Organic Act of 1871 that merged existing municipalities into a single one and imposed a territorial form of government with a governor appointed by the President.

In 1873, President Grant appointed Alexander Robey Shepherd, a big city political boss (he was also known as Boss Shepherd), as the second governor of the Federal District. Shepherd had been part of the group that had pushed congress to create the unified territorial government. He authorized large-scale projects that modernized the city but also bankrupted it. Shephard's administration led Congress to eliminate the territorial government in 1874, replacing it with a three-member Board of Commissioners (two were appointed by the president, subject to congressional approval, and the third was selected from the US Army Corps of Engineers).

Direct Congressional Rule

In 1878, Congress eliminated all remaining local institutions such as boards overseeing schools, public health, and police. Congressmembers—elected to represent their home states—managed the day-to-day governing of the merged District through acts of Congress. Committees in the House and the Senate determined what proposals were even brought forth for congressional consideration. Thus, people residing in the District had to appeal to congresspeople who had little incentive to address their concerns.

Viewing the District as a largely Black city, some southern politicians sought to impose their racial biases. In 1944, Senator Theodore G. Bilbo, a Democrat from Mississippi, became the Chairman of the Senate Committee on the District of Columbia and sought to strengthen segregation in the city's workplaces, parks, and National Airport. (The Federal Government had become segregated during President Woodrow Wilson's administration (1915-1919)). One of most formidable forces in District governance was Congressman John McMillan (D-S.C.), who served as the chairman of the House Committee on DC for 24 years after World War II. He was a signatory to the 1956 Southern Manifesto that opposed the desegregation of public schools ordered by the Supreme Court in Brown v. Board of Education. According to the Washington Post (Sept. 4, 1979), "McMillan was viewed as the holder of ultimate authority for almost every aspect of life in the city from parking space assignments to public employee payrolls." Not surprisingly, McMillan opposed forces favoring a change to rule by locally-elected DC officials.

The Path to Home Rule

"Home rule" refers to the right of residents of our Federal District to elect local officials to manage the District's day-to-day affairs. The Senate passed bills providing some form of home rule six times between 1948 and 1966, but each time a similar bill died in the House District of Columbia Committee under Congressman McMillan.

In 1967, the commissioner form of government was replaced by a mayor-commissioner and a nine-member city council, all appointed by the President (at the time Lyndon Johnson). The District was given the authority to elect a School Board.

Home Rule

Finally, in 1973, Congress passed the Home Rule Act, and District residents approved it in a special referendum the next year. However, Congress retains significant authority, for example, the ability to review all local legislation, including the D.C. budget, and to appoint D.C. judges. District home rule includes the right to elect a mayor and a city Council. The powers and duties of the Council are comparable to those held by state, county, and city legislatures, such as the authority to pass laws and to approve the District's annual budget submitted by the mayor. The Council is a co-equal branch of government and is part of a system of checks and balances similar to that in a state government. The mayor can veto legislation passed by the Council.

Home Rule also includes Advisory Neighborhood Commissions comprised of commissioners, each allocated to represent roughly 2,000 residents. ANC commissions are supposed to represent neighborhood concerns to the Council. Unfortunately, although ANC commissioners are elected, they are not paid, which no doubt limits who is willing to take such a position.

Neighborhood Associations

During the decades of Congressional rule, neighborhood community associations played an important role in representing the concerns of residents. A stronger association could more effectively represent residents' concerns. Local newspapers often included articles about the efforts of local neighborhood associations on behalf of their residents.

Article published in the Evening Star, October 16th, 1935

In the early decades of the FCCA, these included efforts to get better transportation into downtown, to create the playground at what is now Hardy Park, and to get a local public school built to serve children in the neighborhood (Hardy School, built in 1932, now houses the Lab School lower campus). Of course, as noted in the November 2025 Foxhall News article on housing segregation, associations could also play a role in exclusionary policies perceived as serving the neighborhoods interests.

Poem by Janet Farrell, 1986.

Daffodil

I was the first to push my head above the ground, to test the cold. The first to force my way through tangled green of ivy,
to see lame Winter crawl away.
And with my gleaming horn,
I called the others forth.

Now there are hundreds of us,
marching across this hillside in the sun.
Thousands of us, our golden flags unfurled
to catch the (oh, so different) winds of March.
Thousands of us now, our trumpets crying triumph and rebirth...

But remember, I was first.
